Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Evening service at 7 o'clock.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. B. Blake had charge of the Sunday services. The subject of the morning sermon was "The Importance of Little Things," the text being in Zechariah 4:10. At the evening service, lessons were drawn from the story of Ruth and Naomi, the text being in Ruth 1:16 and 17. The startling event is that which the secular historian usually records, and it is refreshing to find such a story as the one of the evening recorded at all. It is a pleasure to read of Joan of Arc but there are virtues other than these prominent in her life which should also be sung.

Ruth is the great example of filial devotion, leaving home, kindred and country for whatever lot might come to Naomi. From Naomi she had learned of God and from henceforth she would also follow him. Christians everywhere should make the life they profess to live such a reality and so attractive that those with whom they come in contact will desire it also.
